

The Green-Eyed Monster (Othello)

Elizabeth: lyrics.
James: guitars, bass.
Nigel: drums, keys.
Kris : vocals.

Desdemona white and pure
Loves Othello, the handsome Moor.
A perfect marriage some would say.
Evil Iago don't see it that way.

Iago, Othello's mind has swayed
Love and trust are both betrayed
A dropped handkerchief, sole evidence
Othello will not presume innocence

Jealousy, monster with green eyes
False friends who tell insidious lies
Tainted by ego and by pride
A royal couple, barely wed,
A love that was pure
Now torn to shreds

Othello's rage knows no bounds
Desdemona he will confound
Blind jealousy destroys his love
Cruelly, he kills his wife, his tender dove

Jealousy, monster with green eyes
False friends who tell insidious lies
Tainted by ego and by pride
A royal couple, barely wed,
A love that was pure
Now torn to shreds

Trifles light as air are to the jealous
Proofs as strong as holy writ
A marriage made in Heaven
Was destined to end in Hell
